

A Day's Tour East of LOUISVILLE

Liberty Hall, 218 Wilkinson — The home of Kentucky's first U. S. Senator, John Brown, this mansion, built in 1796, now is a museum open to the public.

Daniel Boone Grave— Boone and his wife are buried in the Frankfort Cemetery overlooking the Kentucky River. Vice-President Richard M. Johnson, poet Theodore O'Hara and other notables also are buried here.

Continue on U. S. 60 from Frankfort through Versailles to Lexington. Three miles west of Lexington is Keeneland Race Course. Meets are held in the spring and fall. Visitors are welcome daily.

Lexington, the educational and cultural center of east central Kentucky, was founded in 1779, and has many points of interest, all easily found. They include:

Hopemont, 201 N. Mill— The home of Gen. John Hunt Morgan, famed Civil War Confederate cavalry leader, this fine old mansion now is a museum open to the public.

A Day's Tour East of LOUISVILLE

Ashland, E. Main Street and Sycamore — The home of Henry Clay, noted Kentucky statesman, also is a museum to which the public is invited.

Transylvania College, 300 N. Broadway—The first college chartered west of the Allegheny Mountains, this historic school traces its origin back to 1780. Moved to present location in 1789.

University of Kentucky, S. Limestone—The state university is located on a campus encircling Lexington on the Western side.

Lexington Cemetery, 833 W. Main—Henry Clay, Vice-President John C. Breckenridge, author James Lane Allen and other famed Kentuckians are buried here. Open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.